Fulbright New Zealand Annual Report for the period 1 October 2006 - 30 September 2007

The Fulbright Programme was an initiative of US Senator J. William Fulbright to promote international understanding through educational and cultural exchanges between the US and other countries. He believed the programme could play an important role in building a lasting world peace in the aftermath of World War II.

The New Zealand-United States Educational Foundation (now trading as Fulbright New Zealand) was established in 1948 through a bi-national treaty between the governments of the US and New Zealand.
